Leather Furniture to Last a Lifetime

The Acme of Comfort at a Minimum of Cost

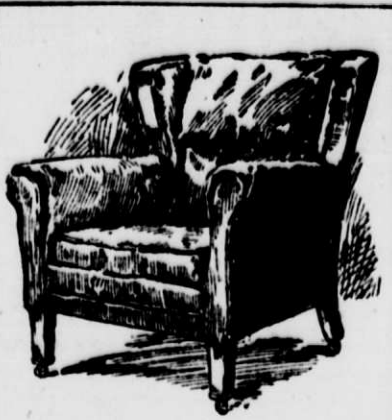

THE VOGUE OF LEATHER FURNITURE is far from new. It is one of the influences for home comfort and beauty that has been handed down from generation to generation. One never tires of GOOD LEATHER FURNITURE.

Which chair do you "drop into" when you're most weary? Which chair do guests most often select? Which does the elder folk, the invalid? And which becomes known as "Father's," "Big Brother's," "Grandpa's," "Uncle Ned's"? The big, roomy, comfortable, easy-to-sit-about-in, hospitable, inviting, long-lasting, friendly Leather Chair! Is it not so?

Have you place for one more? Or perhaps, your first? A friend or dear one to whom you'd like to make a gift to last a lifetime, a gift embodying a reminder of you each twenty-four hours?

The following are a few SUGGESTIONS only, culled from a generous stock, produced by the best makers, and all at prices providing economies.

This leather ARM CHAIR, $24.25; ROCKER, same price.

A decidedly special value. Come early enough to-morrow to secure one of the limited number. Then look elsewhere. If you find such a value, cancel your order. Wing back, curved arms, loose cushion; cushion covered in brown genuine Spanish leather, as is the entire chair.

"HAGAR" Foe to Vice, Says Book's Author

Thinks Preventive Knowledge as Needful in Morals as in Medicine.

DEPICTS WAGES OF SIN

Novel Comstock Condemns Written to Shield Girls, Declares Dr. Goodman.

Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman, author of "Hagar Revelly," which was seized by Anthony Comstock as an immoral book on Tuesday, took the attitude yesterday of a literary physician in discussing his novel. He described the book practically as a preventive of immorality and pointed out that, just as means are taken to prevent the spread of tuberculosis and other contagious diseases so the time has come for the preventing of immorality and the upbuilding of greater spirituality in the world by teaching young girls and boys the pitfalls of vice.

Dr. Goodman, for, he is a graduate of the medical schools of Washington University and of the University of Vienna, paced nervously up and down his room in the National Arts Club as he talked. His blue eyes were serious, his manner embarrassed, for the sudden publicity seemed to have depressed him and the fear that his two years of work would go for nothing was apparent. The young man, he is only 31 years old, seated himself for a moment and said:

"Do you think that I would have dedicated a book to my mother if I had thought for a moment it was immoral or an incentive to licentiousness? No person could possibly believe so who realizes how I have worked all my life and the ambitions that have moved me. The motive of 'Hagar Revelly' is twofold. First, there is the scientific reason which makes it necessary for the innocent youth of the land to be taught the wages of vice. Then there is the reason of depicting the great value and the reward of the spiritual life, the value of clinging to high ideals through suffering and want. That is what I have done in my book. While it is true sentences may be picked out that are described as suggestive, there is a whole book of spiritual striving and a picture of the reward of virtue. I took two sisters and I traced their growth. The one was spiritual and fought for her ideals amid suffering. The other was born with a tendency to gaiety and possessed the nature that easily could go wrong. It was not low wages that made Hagar go wrong. She was just born that way. I showed as she grew older she lacked the spiritual contentment that her sister had gained.

"At last Hagar is compelled to marry the man she hates as a means of escaping from the gutter. The picture of the whole book is to teach young girls that vice, though glittering, ends in misery and unhappiness, and I think I have done so.

"As for Mr. Comstock I have nothing to say, but if he is to suppress honest and sincere understanding of the facts of modern life then the future of every girl and every boy is imperilled." Dr. Goodman said he is dependent on his writings for a livelihood, having found that he could not do so on his literary work and attend to his medical duties. He received offers yesterday from theatrical agents for the dramatic rights of his book. Letters also were sent to him by persons who had read the book praising it.

ABSCONDING CASHIER IN CANADA

Perjury Prosecutions to Follow Disclosures in Flour Co. Case.

The Washburn-Crosby Flour Company got word from Burns detectives yesterday that John C. Schildknecht, the cashier who disappeared August 29 leaving a shortage of $55,000, had been found in Montreal.

Schildknecht probably will be held for extradition, but before he gets here some of those who are said to have benefited by his thefts may be prosecuted for perjury in the United States District Court. The charges will be based on testimony given before Commissioner Gilchrist in the bankruptcy proceedings whereby the flour company hoped to get back part of the $55,000.

The most interesting witnesses at the bankruptcy proceedings were Miss Effie McMinn, the girl who posed as Schildknecht's wife, and Nicholas Vaccarello, brother of Paul Kelly.

Miss McMinn testified that she never got any substantial amount of money from Schildknecht, but she admitted yesterday to William Lesser, attorney for the receiver, that until recently she had $800 in the Franklin Savings Bank and $1,500 in the Commercial Trust Company. Vaccarello swore that he never received any money from Schildknecht, although he leased the apartment in West 114th street, where Miss McMinn and Schildknecht lived.

Paul Kelly was to have testified at yesterday's hearing, but failed to appear. Commissioner Gilchrist gave Kelly's lawyer, John Santoro, orders to produce his client at 11 o'clock this morning.

FOUND DEAD IN HER CELLAR.

Unexplained Feature of Woman's Death by Strangulation.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 24.—Mrs. Martin Rom was found dead in the cellar of her home at 600 Washington street early this morning by her husband. The back of her head was cut and her throat was bruised. An autopsy showed that she died of strangulation.

In the cellar was found the severed end of a rope wrapped around a beam. Rom denied that he had cut a wife's body down. He said he found the body in his return from the home of his sister-in-law, where he was to have met his wife.

The county physician's certificate said it was a case of suicide by strangulation.

SAYS SHE WAS SLAVE AND THIEF.

Edith Miller Tells Her Life Story in Mann Act Case.

(PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—The story of Edith Miller of New York from the time she was a girl just out of school was recounted by her to-day at the trial of Thomas and Nicholas Miller, brothers, before Judge Thompson in the United States District Court on a charge of violating the Mann act.

Not alone was she obliged to support the defendants, she said, but she was compelled by Thomas Miller to steal diamonds from men, using piers which he gave her to cut them from their settings. Miller, she testified, also told her to use drugs to stupefy men whom she was to rob.

EDISON PLAYS JOKE ON HIS NEW OFFICE BOY

Inventor Mistaken for Stranger on Return to Laboratory After Illness.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 24.—Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, played a little joke to-day that indicated that he had about recovered from the illness which had kept him confined to his home for two weeks.

With a master key the inventor unlocked the gate leading to the laboratory yard. He entered the building and was walking toward his private library on the first floor when he was stopped by the new office boy, who commenced to guide the destinies of the laboratory yesterday.

"No, strangers allowed in here," said the boy to the white haired inventor. "It is a rule of the building that no one except employees can enter this building unless they have an appointment with Mr. Edison and you can't see him because he is at home sick."

Mr. Edison gravely informed the lad he had an appointment. The boy, however, told the man it was no use, as Mr. Edison was not there.

"To whom do I go if I wish to make an appointment to see Mr. Edison?" asked the inventor.

On learning that this matter was in the hands of William H. Meadowcroft, the inventor's secretary, the "stranger" asked to be allowed to see the secretary. The inventor was quietly sitting in a chair when Mr. Meadowcroft appeared.

"I have come to take up the work left off by Mr. Edison," said the inventor, "I want to know if you're not desirous of employing a man who is willing to work now and then."

"We are in need of a good man here and I think I can put you to work," replied the secretary as he led the inventor to his desk.

"Meadowcroft, that boy you have here is all right," said Edison. "I hope he will continue to see that the rules of this laboratory are faithfully carried out." Then he started to go through an accumulation of mail that looked like a miniature mountain on his desk.

When asked how he was feeling Mr. Edison said he felt "great." "I really think it does a man good to have a little rest now and then, even though it is forced upon him," he added.

Although he has lost a little weight, Mr. Edison looks well, and a little beginning.

to-morrow he will be back on the job again "doing a little something at the laboratory."

Mr. Edison contracted a cold more than two weeks ago while motoring through New England with his family. Upon his return to his home, Glenmont in Llewellyn Park, an old trouble, indigestion, returned. This kept him confined to his room for ten days.

PASTOR'S WIFE A PARANOID.

The Delusions of Jealousy Nearly Disrupted the Church.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Mrs. Nettie Vivien, wife of the Rev. A. M. Vivien of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, has been sent to the State Insane Asylum at Rittenhouse.

Mrs. Vivien has long been a paranoiac with delusions of jealousy. She believed that her husband was unfaithful and her conduct under the influence of the delusion has resulted in the circulation of scandalous stories about the minister and members of his congregation.
